

Bringing the Monsters of Azeroth to Life

What the Fuzz was lucky enough to be able to steal a few moments of this year's NFC esteemed guest of honour, Kazul G Fox's time. Here's a brief excerpt from the interview:

Have you ever been to NFC before?

I have never been to NFC before, in fact this will be my very first time out of the United States as well!

What's your impression of NFC so far?

I have been really pleased with the staff. They have all been really friendly and have done a great job at keeping me informed and updated on everything.

You're a cosplayer, but how involved would you say you are in the furry fandom?

It's hard to explain the difference, but let me try. Furry is a very art driven community and emphasis is placed on commissioning artist to bring our characters to life in their particular style. Cosplay on the other hand is much more focused on the DIY, Do It Yourself, attitude...

You can read the rest of the interview and Kazul's lovely answers by scanning the QR code. (Phase)

Gotta Catch 'Em All – Again!

The hit game from last year is back! Fursuits - Gotta Catch 'Em All is a fursuit-catching game in which three factions compete with each other to "catch" the most amount of fursuits during the convention.

To catch a fursuiter, find a fursuiter with a blue fursuit badge. Calmly approach them and kindly ask if you can see the code on their badge.

Either use the NordicFuzzCon app or go to games.nordicfuzzcon.org using the QR code to write in the badge code. And whoosh! You've caught a fursuiter! Congratulations, and good luck in the hunt! (Miles T.F. Baxxter)

Please note that only fursuiters with blue fursuit badges are part of the game.

IT LOOKS LIKE THIS

THE CODE

Credits

Editor:
Nostradamus

Writers: Miles T.F. Baxxter, Nostradamus, Mickel, Phase

Photo: Emphy,
Kazuul G Fox

Layout: Kanda Bear,
Rexam

Temple of Temptation is Titillating

If you'd like a breather from the more vigorous activity at NFC, this reporter recommends you pay a visit to the Temple of Temptation, where many delightful snacks await you. The maids and butlers were all very friendly and although I initially had a slight hiccup with my order, they were very efficient at correcting the minor error. The overall experience was even more enjoyable than last year: the menus were professionally-printed and laminated, we placed our order at the table, so there were no long queues and the food was brought over as quickly as it could.

The food itself was very enjoyable, with one or two surprises that made the experience just that touch more wholesome. My Oreo cheesecake was quite delicious enough on its own, but it came topped with a blackberry and what I thought was a sprig of mint. Then I tasted it and found that it was in fact basil! Unorthodox, but surprisingly tasty. The savoury crunch of the basil interplayed with the smooth creaminess of the Oreo sauce to bring a wonderful hint of South America to NordicFuzzCon.

Laced with a naughty impish chili, the hot chocolate was refreshing and stimulating. Each sip of cocoa brought warm jungles and golden sunlit temples dancing across my tongue. Even King Queztlcoatl himself would swim the Atlantic for a taste.

I have to say, there's something both charming and adorable about seeing these larger-than-life critters floofing about between tables, serving food from trays. Last year, the staff were dressed as generic French Maids and Butlers. This year, they embraced the South American ambience with a real flair. Many were dressed in brightly-coloured ponchos or wore native headdresses or robes. They really added to the jungle-esque biome created by the magnificent hotel lobby.

If you're looking for a break, but don't want to leave Mesoamerica behind just yet, the Temple of Temptation awaits! (Nostradamus)

Warning

CHOCOLATE CAN BE BAD FOR YOUR FURSUIT USE IN MODERATION

For tasty emergencies or for warding off Dementors, only. Walking and eating simultaneously does not count as "zero calories".

What the Fact?!

Did you know...

...that the combined length of all of NFCs network cables is not enough to reach the International Space Station (ISS) from the hotel?

...that over nine thousand people applied to be blipmaster? Sadly, they didn't apply to the right person.

Tonight's Dance

By the order of Mausie, the DJs will play mainly cheese (and will sneak other songs when he's not listening).

VJ	Vilvi
Time	DJ
21:00 - 23:00	RobSqrI
23:00 - 01:00	Stripe
01:00 - 03:00	F00f